You are invited to send a request to attend the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency's (OCC) first ever "Office Hours" in San Francisco, California.

"Office Hours" is an opportunity to have a candid discussion with OCC staff regarding financial technology, new products or services, partnering with a bank or fintech, or any other matter related to financial innovation. Agency staff will provide feedback and respond to your questions. Attendees will learn about the OCC's perspective on how to effectively and responsibly engage in innovation.

When requesting one of the 15 one-hour meetings, the OCC asks that you provide some information about why you are interested in meeting with the agency. Depending on the demand, the Office of Innovation may not be able to meet all requests.

The OCC's Acting Chief Innovation Officer Beth Knickerbocker will attend each of these meetings, along with other OCC experts.
